Excerpt: .fortrpss, to be lowered only as the last act of surrender. It was this love for the flag which inspired that ringing order from your own heroic Dix: If any man attempt to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot. It was this love for the flag, which flung it to the breeze over the rebellious city of New Orleans, on the anniversary of Washington s birth-day, beneath which an hundred armed men held a mob at bay and kept it flying, until the going down of the sun. It was this love for the flag, which warmed the breast of that brave soldier at Vicksburg, who, when his comrades deserted him, refused to retrace his steps and planting his colors within twenty yards of the enemy s rifle pits, stood by them all the day long. It wa9 this love for the flag which kept it flying over the crumbling walls of Sumter amidst shot and shell and only lowering it at last with the honors of a national salute. It was this love for the flag which gave voice to that sublime declaration of Major Anderson, the hero of Sumter: God Almighty nailed that flag to the mast and I could not have lowered it, if I had tried. It was this love for the flag which inspired the minister of the Gospel to exclaim: Let the flag of our country wave from the spire of every church in the...
